Last month he sold out his interest in the business to his partners. Sine then he has been drinking and gambling heavily. Last night, while in a despondent mood from heavy losses the night before, he walked to the bridge spanning the Rie Grande, just below the city, and, after passing the gate-keeper's house, deliberately put a pistol to his right temple and fired, the ball crashing through his brain, causing instant death. The gate-keeper heard the shot, but supposing it was some one shooting into the sir, paid no attention. This morning at six o'clock teansters coming into town found the body lying on the further end of the bridge, a pistol at his side with one empty camber. His watch and jewalry wereon his person numolested. Karr was a most popular young man and had a number of friends who are shocked at his suicide. Mr. H. J. Comber, a United States Circuit and District Court jurce, who came to this city to-day in response to a summons issued by the Clerk of the United States District Court, in conversation in Marshal McGee's office, made a statement that occasioned considerable comment. He said that on the preceding day Frank James was seen walking about the streets of Gallatin, accompanied by his wite and by his sister, Mrs. Allen Palmer, attending to some business in various stores there. The statement was also made that the prisoner was not accompanied by a guard. An official of the court stated that Mr. Comber said that while Frank James was doing this a colored man, who had taken some goods from a store, was doing penal service with a ball and chain attached to him. As no representative of theriff Croater was present nothing in explanation of his side of the matter was said. It is said that James' health demands that he be exercised at least a little every day.
